

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ONLINE MOCKS

Application Requirements

- Use a desktop PC or laptop connected to the internet.
- Reliable internet connection.
- Use Google Chrome browser for the best experience.
- If using Apple Mac or Ipad, use Safari browser.
- Browsers that are NOT supported: Microsoft Edge and Mozilla Firefox.
- Do not use mobile phones, or tablets less than 10 inches.

- Online mocks exams can be started at any time during the time window given.
- All tests in the mock MUST be done at the same session. You cannot do individual tests at separate times. Make sure you have adequate time to complete ALL the tests.
- You MUST do the tests in the order in which they are displayed on the screen.
- You CANNOT finish a test before the time is up; the test will automatically submit when time is up.
- Closing the application or tab early to forcefully close the test will mean that your test is unfinished and you will NOT receive a result.
- You should not have any other tabs or applications running on your PC.
- DO NOT press the F5 key, back button or other function key during the test.
- The platform will save each answer at the point that you move onto the next question. So, if your PC crashes or your internet fails, don't worry, all answers except the current answer will be saved.
- If you closed the tab accidentally, or your device crashed or you lost internet connectivity, log back into the application and from the main menu, you can resume the test if your time was not up. You should ONLY resume the test if you were in the middle of the test and have time to finish it.
- If test is stuck at the finish time, and does not give you a message that your test has been successfully completed, then do not worry, you can safely close the tab and then start your next test.

Remember that our online mock exams operate through two sister websites below. Your parent/guardian will have a login for both sites, but you will only have a login for the exams website where you will take your test.

Roadside Fruit

Fruit (11) sel□□ers populate the roadside along the main arteries (12) lead□□g out of the capital, Kampala. Velvety dark (13) sk□□n□ed locals with broad, white grins set up stalls under stocky, (14) l□□fy trees. The choice of tree is (15) lm□□or□ant; it should stand out to cars travelling at speed along the road but at the same time offer day long (16) pr□te□tion from the searing, (17) equ□t□rial sun. There should also be sufficient room for the several cars to park. A fold up wooden table with large (18) sta□□ies□ steel bowls bearing freshly picked fruits make up the stall. Mangoes, bananas, oranges, coconuts and (19) pin□□□ples are usually in (20) s□□a□ on all the year round. Some fruits like the small round black African (21) pa□□□□on fruits are rare but not uncommon on these stalls. A small transistor (22) r□□□o plays songs in Swahili. Soon after the stall is set, lazy (23) pom□□□s monkeys full of self-(24) imp□□□□□ce arrive, (25) ack□□□□i dge the stall owners and climb on top of the tree above. They lounge around on top of the tree for the rest of the day hoping for a free (26) f□□st at the end of the day when all the unsold fruit is (27) d□sca□ded. The younger restless monkeys rave to (28) po□ula□ tunes from the radio. Every now and (29) a□□in cars stop by. Every customer is treated with a (30) co□□teo□s smile on arrival and a hearty wave on (31) dep□□□ure. Most customers yell their orders from their cars and the (32) d□iv□r pays. Some get out of the car, stretch their legs and even (33) bar□□r the prices, all under the watchful scrutiny of the monkeys (34) p□tie□□ly ogling the fruits and keeping stock.
